Ioet Ecuador S.A. offers end-to-end IT solutions to clients around the world. Some of our most important clients are Grubhub, HP, MidoPlay, GoSpace, and other high-profile-companies. Our international team is based in Quito and Loja, Ecuador. We are looking for smart and creative software development interns, who are looking for a truly global experience, and are also excited about:

- Gaining international work experience in a modern company in one of the most beautiful countries

- Learning the latest technologies, which we use to build complex systems that effectively enable the business processes and objectives of our clients

- Using modern design and software development frameworks according to industry's best practices

- Working for a global customer base on major projects and with globally distributed teams where you will be part of a multicultural community of expertise

- Taking advantage of our events and talks about new tools, platforms, and other relevant topics

If this is the type of environment you can imagine yourself in, we would like to know if your skills match the profile we are looking for:

- Be skilled using at least one programming language and development platform

- Ideally have worked on a project that comprised the entire software development cycle: analysis, design, coding, tests, quality control, quality assurance, deployment, maintenance (even if you only worked on one phase!)

- Ideally have participated in interesting IT projects with a certain level of challenge that you felt proud of overcoming (as part of your studies or a previous internship)

- Passionate about problem solving and proactive regarding learning a new topic

- Fluent in English (Spanish skills are nice to have, but not required)

- Excited to spend some time in Ecuador where our development labs are located

Internships are flexible and can be organized based on your availability, either during the semester or your break. All details can be individually arranged.
